Governor Brown Lifts Drought Emergency, Retains Prohibition on Wasteful Practices, Executive Order B-40-17

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. today ended the drought state of emergency in most of California, while maintaining water reporting requirements and prohibitions on wasteful practices, such as watering during or right after rainfall.

- Executive Order B-40-17 lifts the drought emergency in all California counties except Fresno, Kings, Tulare and Tuolumne, where emergency drinking water projects will continue to help address diminished groundwater supplies. Today's order also rescinds two emergency proclamations from January and April 2014 and four drought-related executive orders issued in 2014 and 2015.
- Executive Order B-40-17 builds on actions taken in Executive Order B-37-16, which remains in effect, to continue making water conservation a way of life in California.

Oroville Dam Auxiliary Spillway Incident

- Flow from the flood control spillway will be reduced from 40,000 cubic feet per second to zero.
- As flows are reduced, DWR will monitor the status of the dam, spillways, and related structures to ensure their continued safety and stability.
- Flow to the Feather River will be reduced gradually to minimize risk to downstream levees per the Army Corps of Engineers operational requirements.
- This flow reduction in the river will be buffered by the Hyatt Powerplant, Diversion Pool, Thermalito Forebay, and the Thermalito Afterbay to a final flow of 13,000 cubic feet per second.

On 04/07/17 at 1640 hours, the California State Warning Center (CSWC) received notification from DWR advising they will be increasing flow to the Feather River at 1900 hours. Flow in the Feather River low flow channel through Oroville will increase. Thermalito Power Plant will also increase from 9,000 cfs to 13,000 cfs. The Oroville Dam spillway remains at 0 cfs.

Per the DWR Flood Operations Center and California Data Exchange Center (CDEC) as of 04/07/17 at 1800 hours:

- Inflow: 39,739 cfs.
- Outflow: 9,758 cfs.
- The current lake elevation is 848.96 feet.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- Cold air aloft will spread across Northern California through Saturday, causing snow levels to fall to around 3000 feet by tonight.
- Southern California will be on the southern fringes of a storm system tonight through Saturday.
 - Gusty winds will be the main impact with light showers possible late tonight through Saturday.
- Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:
- http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/www_bc_cal.php - Temporarily unavailable.
- <https://alerts-v2.weather.gov/counties/CA>

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

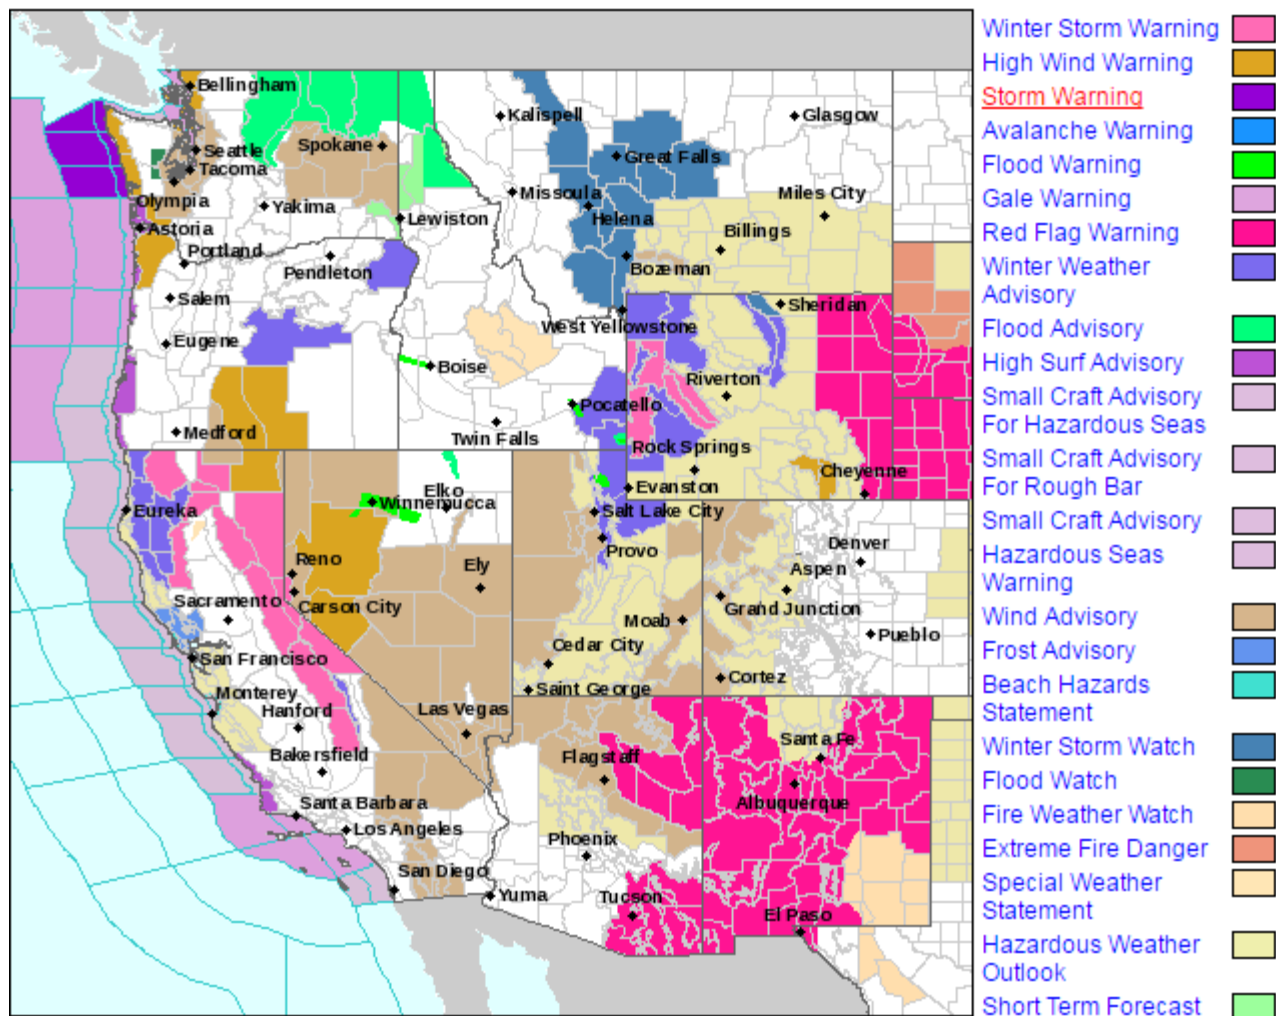

Stormy weather will continue throughout the region through Saturday. Strong gusty southeast to southwest winds will continue into this evening, with gusts of 30-40 mph in many open areas and 50-60 mph at higher wind-prone locations. Colder air is gradually moving in from the northwest. Snow levels will drop to 3500 feet near the OR state line and 5000 feet in the Tahoe region today, and drop another 1000 feet or so on Saturday. Winds will be lighter on Saturday as rain showers and mountain snow showers continue. After a break most of Sunday another wave of wet windy weather will move in late Sunday. Next week will continue to be wet, windy, and unsettled as several more waves move through the region.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

An unseasonably cold low pressure system is centered off the Oregon Coast early this morning. An associated front will slowly sweep through Central California today, bringing a 3-6 hour period of light to moderate rain. So far, 1-2" of rain have occurred in Monterey County and the Sierras north of Fresno County. The front is weakening as moves southward, so rainfall amounts will generally taper off to 0.50" – 1.00" across the rest of the Central Coast and Sierras to 0.25"-0.50" across Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties. Only a tenth of an inch or so is expected south and east of Los Angeles by the time the front swings through Southern California early Saturday morning. The snow level will be above 7,000 feet today and tonight, but accumulations of 2-3' will be possible above 8,000 feet before the storm winds down Saturday morning. West winds of 20-30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will occur today through Saturday over all mountains and the high desert. Expect highs to reach the 40s in the mountains to the 60s in valleys the next two days. But sunny, warmer and less windy weather is expected Sunday into the first half of next week. An active weather pattern may return toward next weekend with a possibility of more wetting rains over Central California.
